Need For More Lights Seen; Changes At Main And Mingo Urged

COMMITTEE TOLD TO ACT

Recent Fatality Recalled By Cady

Appeal to council to buy more traffic lights and make repairs on the light at Mingo and Main streets was made Wednesday evening by Mayor W. B. Cady.

The mayor sent a letter to councilmen in which he discussed the traffic light question. His letter was referred to the safety committee and Karl Herrmann, safety director, who will survey the light situation.

"I think this matter should not die in a committee," Councilman Frank Lynch said. "I have made a survey of the city and the mayor is absolutely right."

Councilman William Reid suggested that signs be placed warning motorists about the light at Mingo and Main streets. Officials contend that the green lenses in the light are difficult to see. The light does not give a caution signal.

Letter Submitted

The mayor's letter to council follows:

"I wish you to know just how I feel about certain things here in the city that can and should be given your consideration.

"We have had another accident, which was fatal, on N. Court street. This could have been avoided if there was a traffic light erected on this thoroughfare and had slowed up the traffic on that main artery which runs North and South through the city. There is also a traffic light at Main and Mingo streets that is very unsatisfactory and should be given attention.

"Your body has voted to appropriate some $12,000 to erect boulevard lights along two of the main streets of this city. These boulevard lights will never save life or limb or property of the traveling public.

"May I suggest that your safety committee be instructed to make a survey of this city and report back to the council some of the intersections that should be equipped with traffic lights. I believe that the taxpayers' money should be placed where it will give

Patrolman Fitzpatrick Acts To Break Up Faulty Parking

Twenty automobiles in Circleville's downtown district were decorated with red tags Wednesday afternoon notifying drivers to report to police court for parking violations.

Six motorists had reported in court up to noon Thursday and paid $2 each. Those who paid were Donald Walker, I. J. Mangus, Earl Hall, Russell Imler, Mrs. Charles Walker and Mary Wolf. All but Mangus are Circleville residents. His address was not obtained by police.

Mayor Cady warned motorists that those who fail to report may be arrested and costs attached to the penalty.

The tags were issued by Patrolman Fred Fitzpatrick when he made a careful check of the district in compliance with an order issued by Karl Herrmann, safety director.

Cars tagged were straddling parking lines, parked in fire hydrant zones, double parked and blocking alleys, the officer said.

MOTOR MAGNATE OBTAINS PATENT ON REAR ENGINE

WASHINGTON, July 7—(UP)—The U. S. patent office disclosed today that it had granted Henry Ford a patent on a new type rear-engine automobile.

The patent application outlines a compact arrangement of a V-type, 8-cylinder motor, transmission, differential and other mechanisms, all assembled over the rear axle and thus providing a more direct drive from engine to the wheels.

"In the past," the application said, "considerable difficulty has been experienced with all driving units of like nature because of the difficulties in maintaining exact alignment between the various units comprising the assembly.

"It is extremely costly to machine the various parts so that axis of the engine crankshaft is exactly aligned with the axis of the transmission and driving pinion. In all other assemblies known to the applicant if such an alignment is not maintained, noisy operation invariably results."

Ford claimed in the application that the new engine assembly allows an appreciable percentage of out-of-line displacement and yet permits efficient operation.

100,000 To Greet President In Visit To Marietta's Celebration On Friday

MARIETTA, July 7—(UP)—On the wooded-hillside where few pioneers watched the inauguration 150 years ago of General Arthur St. Clair as the first governor of the Northwest Territory, President Roosevelt tomorrow will address an expected throng of 100,000 persons.

The President's address at 9:30 a. m. in Muskingum Park will signalize the formal opening of the Northwest Territory's sesquicentennial celebration. Mr. Roosevelt also will dedicate a new national memorial, "The Start Westward of the Nation," designed by Gutzon Borglum.

The Presidential special of 11 cars is scheduled to arrive here at 9 a. m. and depart an hour later for Covington Ky.

Former Governor George White, chairman of the Federal Northwest Territory commission, will introduce Mr. Roosevelt. Representatives of five other states, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, and Illinois, that formed the territory will serve on the reception committee.

75 Patrolmen Called

Under the direction of secret service agents extensive policing plans have been made to guarantee the safety of the Presidential party. Seventy-five Ohio State highway patrolmen have been sent here to take charge of traffic along the parade route Mr. Roosevelt and his group will take to the Park. The highway patrolmen will be aided by squads from Indiana and Illinois police barracks; 300 men from American Legion posts here and at Parkersburg, W. Va., and 600 Boy Scouts.

All automobile traffic will be banned along the parade route during the President's stay and pedestrians will not be allowed off the sidewalks.

Marietta has taken on a holiday air for the President's visit. The entire city is bedecked with patriotic decorations. Along the parade line tomorrow groups in period costumes will be posed before the Campus Hartius Museum, the Ohio Company Land Office and the Return Jonathan Meigs home.

A replica of the famous flotilla which brought the first group of pioneers in April 1788, has been anchored in the Muskingum river just off the park.

Senator Robert J. Bulkley and Representative Robert T. Secrest will be the principal speakers on a program tomorrow afternoon.

A historical pageant, "Stars From the Flag," will be presented twice tomorrow and each night thereafter during the remainder of the 10-day celebration.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., July 7—(UP)—The Florida pardon board assembled here in special meeting today to hear a request to commute to life imprisonment the death sentence imposed on Franklin Pierce McCall for kidnapping 5-year-old Jimmy Cash at Princeton May 28.

After 25 days of preparation, Attorney C. A. Avriett, who obtained the pardon board's consent to the special hearing in McCall's behalf, was ready with his arguments for modification of the penalty.

ROLLING FORK, Miss., July 7—(UP)—The charred body of Tom Green, 48, a negro blacksmith, was taken from the city dump today where witnesses said it had been set afire and burned by 300 members of a posse.

The Negro was slain yesterday after a 15-minute gun battle with members of a posse that cornered him in a sharecropper cabin after he had shot and killed his employer, R. Purdy Flanagan, a white planter.

Witnesses said Green's body was dragged from the cabin to the scene of the Flanagan shooting, doused with gasoline and set afire. Later, it was said, the body was tied behind an automobile and dragged several miles into town where it was fired again at the city dump.

Sheriff M. C. Ewing, who led the posse, denied the body had been burned or mutilated. He said it had been turned over to the Negro's family for burial and that no further investigation was planned.

Flanagan was killed by the Negro after an argument over ownership of a rifle. Green was wounded but was able to run to his cabin where he barricaded himself.

Within half an hour a posse of 300 businessmen, farmers, deputies and negroes surrounded the shack. Green began firing with a pistol, a shotgun and rifle. A few minutes later L. H. Harris, a planter, rushed the door and blew off Green's head with a riot gun.

DOCTOR ORDERS COMPLETE REST FOR SEN. BORAH

WASHINGTON, July 7—(UP)—Sen. William E. Borah, R., Ida., 73-year-old anti-trust fight leader, today was under the care of a doctor and a nurse with orders to take a "complete rest."

Miss Cora Rubin, the senator's secretary, said he was "not dangerously ill."

Mrs. Borah, who was in the West visiting relatives, returned here today and established herself at her husband's bedside. She was advised of his condition by telephone, when she reached Chicago yesterday.

Borah was 73 on June 29. Miss Rubin said he called in a doctor Sunday night "when he suddenly felt ill."

"I have talked with the doctor," Miss Rubin said, "and he told me there was no reason why Senator Borah shouldn't be up and around in a little while, he advised a complete rest."

"Senator Borah is still reading his mail and the newspapers which I take to him."

No callers were permitted, however.

CHINESE MENACE SHANGHAI AREA; TROOPS CALLED

SHANGHAI, July 7—(UP)—United States marines took up patrol stations in the American defense sector of the International Settlement late today while Chinese patriots spread terror in this Japanese-controlled city on the first anniversary of the Chinese-Japanese war.

DAVEY'S CHOICE TO START WORK ON FULL DOCKET

Appointment Follows Confab In Executives Offices Thursday

LONG RECORD BRILLIANT

New Barrister Has Practiced Law Since 1900

Governor Davey announced Thursday that he had appointed Meeker Terwilliger, 238 E. Main street, as judge of the court of Common Pleas for Pickaway county to fill the vacancy left by the death early last Sunday of Judge Joseph W. Adkins.

Mr. Terwilliger's appointment followed a conference in the governor's office in which Lawrence Goeller, chairman of the Pickaway county Democratic executive committee, and Ferd M. Pickens, Davey's campaign manager and former Pickaway county clerk of courts, participated. Pickens spent several hours in Circleville this week in the interest of Mr. Terwilliger's appointment.

Appointee "Pleased"

Informed that the governor had announced his appointment, Mr. Terwilliger said: "I am very pleased."

Selection of Mr. Terwilliger is very popular in Circleville and Pickaway county, members of the bar, whether Democrats or Republicans, giving him their almost unanimous support for the position.

His appointment means that he will be a candidate in November for election to fill the unexpired term of Judge Adkins which continues until Jan. 1, 1941. His name will be written on the August primary ballot to assure nomination.

The Common Pleas judgeship pays $3,600 annually.

To Start Work Soon

Mr. Terwilliger is expected to start work soon on his new duties, the court docket being crowded because of Judge Adkins' lengthy illness. Judge Phil A. Henderson of Logan has been serving the county but this time here has been limited because of his duties in his own county.

Judge Henderson has been commissioned by the state supreme court to continue serving in Circleville until Mr. Terwilliger can dispose of personal business matters and be sworn in.

Mr. Terwilliger is a native of Wayne township. He attended the common school at Union Grove on the Williamsport road.

In the summer of 1899 he attended Ohio Northern university at Ada, then enrolled in the Fall in

Also included in the loot were candy, gum and other automobile accessories.

Young Bennett did not close his service station until midnight Wednesday. He discovered the robbery when he went to work Thursday.

Tuesday night he was burned on the neck and chest when a spark from a light plant ignited gasoline that he carried in a quart jar. The fire that followed destroyed a rest room.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—(UP)—Allotments totaling $854,000 for four Ohio projects were announced by the Rural Electrification Administration today as it turned loose more than $11,000,000 in loans for supplying cheap farm power in 18 states.

R. E. A. announced at the same time that it is considering making additional loans totaling $450,000 for extensions to farmers' Cooperative lines already built in Ohio.

The four projects definitely approved:

Inter-County Rural Cooperative, Inc., Hillsboro, $197,000 for 197 miles of line serving 591 customers in Pike, Ross, Fayette, and Highland counties; an addition to an earlier $384,200 loan for lines in Clinton and Adams counties.

Hancock-Wood Electric Cooperative, Inc., North Baltimore, $333,000 for 321 miles of line serving 972 customers in Wood, Hancock, Putnam, Wyandot and Hardin counties.

United Rural Electric Cooperative, Kenton, $309,000 for 307 miles of line serving 1100 customers in Allen, Auglaize, Marion and Hardin counties.

Pioneer Rural Electric Cooperative, Piqua, $15,000 for financing a community refrigeration plant near Piqua. First of its type to be financed by the government, the refrigerator would be used both for storing family supplies and perishable foods waiting to be marketed.

Today's allotments brought the total for Ohio since the administration's cheap farm electricity drive began to about $8,000,000.

Appointment Follows Confab In Executives Offices Thursday

LONG RECORD BRILLIANT

New Barrister Has Practiced Law Since 1900

Governor Davey announced Thursday that he had appointed Meeker Terwilliger, 238 E. Main street, as judge of the court of Common Pleas for Pickaway county to fill the vacancy left by the death early last Sunday of Judge Joseph W. Adkins.

Mr. Terwilliger's appointment followed a conference in the governor's office in which Lawrence Goeller, chairman of the Pickaway county Democratic executive committee, and Ferd M. Pickens, Davey's campaign manager and former Pickaway county clerk of courts, participated. Pickens spent several hours in Circleville this week in the interest of Mr. Terwilliger's appointment.

Appointee "Pleased"

Informed that the governor had announced his appointment, Mr. Terwilliger said: "I am very pleased."

Selection of Mr. Terwilliger is very popular in Circleville and Pickaway county, members of the bar, whether Democrats or Republicans, giving him their almost unanimous support for the position.

His appointment means that he will be a candidate in November for election to fill the unexpired term of Judge Adkins which continues until Jan. 1, 1941. His name will be written on the August primary ballot to assure nomination.

The Common Pleas judgeship pays $3,600 annually.

To Start Work Soon

Mr. Terwilliger is expected to start work soon on his new duties, the court docket being crowded because of Judge Adkins' lengthy illness. Judge Phil A. Henderson of Logan has been serving the county but this time there has been limited because of his duties in his own county.

Judge Henderson has been commissioned by the state supreme court to continue serving in Circleville until Mr. Terwilliger can dispose of personal business matters and be sworn in.

Mr. Terwilliger is a native of Wayne township. He attended the common school at Union Grove on the Williamsport road.

In the Summer of 1899 he attended Ohio Northern university at Ada, then enrolled in the Fall in Tough luck crossed the path of Bertus Bennett, 23, of Atlanta, for the second time this week, early Thursday, when thieves broke into his residence station at the Atlanta and Route 22 crossroads. Also included in the loot were candy, gum and other automobile accessories.

Young Bennett did not close his service station until midnight Wednesday. He discovered the robbery when he went to work Thursday.

Tuesday night he was burned on the neck and chest when a spark from a light plant ignited gasoline that he carried in a quart jar. The fire that followed destroyed a rest room.

REFORM BILLS FOR JUDICIARY TO BE REVIVED

Next Congress Expected To Take Up Five-Point Program

LEGISLATION PASSED

Proposals Get Attention Of Lawmakers

WASHINGTON, July 7—(UP)—The 75th Congress systematically passed more legislation to improve the efficiency of the Federal Judiciary than any other recent Congress.

Much of the program died with adjournment, but is certain to be revived by its sponsors and pushed to enactment in some form by the 76th Congress.

The series of laws began a year ago with the measure which hastened the death of the Supreme Court reorganization bill by permitting Supreme Court justices to retire with pay at 70, if they have served 10 years.

It ended with legislation providing 16 additional district judges and five circuit court judges.

Five Proposals Advanced

Much of the work was done by the house judiciary committee, authorized a year ago to make a complete study of the courts and recommend constructive legislation.

Scheduled by that committee for continued study and possible enactment next year are five important proposals:

1. Redistricting to equalize the areas and the amount of work of district courts. It was pushed out districts were shaped to conform with waterways and railroads, and do not coincide with motor roads.

2. Removal of unfit district judges. The house passed a bill to establish a court to remove judges for bad behavior. It died in the senate judiciary committee.

3. A "proctor" or administrative officer for the inferior courts, under either the Supreme Court or the senior circuit court judges to give courts financial autonomy and control over personnel apart from the Department of Justice.

4. Reduction and equalization of the costs of litigation to make the courts more accessible to persons of limited means.

5. Giving authority to U. S. Commissioners in minor matters so as to relieve judges of routine burdens.

Most spectacular of the laws affecting the judiciary enacted by the 75th Congress was the compromise court reorganization bill which shelved the proposal to enlarge the Supreme Court.

Speed Final Appeal

It requires a three-judge court to sit in cases to enforce enforcement of Federal statutes; permits the attorney general to intervene in cases where constitutionality is involved and provides direct appeal from district courts to the Supreme Court in constitutional cases.

Enactments of the last Congress included laws to restore the per diem fee of $4 to federal jurors; the municipal bankruptcy law sustained by the Supreme Court after another had been declared unconstitutional, and a number of bills to provide court terms in cities where there have been none.

Provisions were made for creation of 27 new judgeships, more than at any time since 1921.

Burglary and larceny in banks has been made a federal offense, like bank robbery. Penalties for narcotics law violation were increased. It was provided that federal prisoners be put to death in the manner employed by the state in which the execution occurs instead of universally by hanging.

New Regulations in 3 Months

In three months, new regulations for civil procedure in district courts go into effect. They were promulgated by the Supreme Court under authorization of a 1934 law providing they might be suspended by Congress.

A number of minor laws to expedite court procedure were drafted. Under a resolution authorizing it to study the courts, the committee was given $10,000 and spent only $218.59, under the direction of chairman Hutton W. Sumners, D., Tex., and Rep. Sam Hobbs, D., Tex.

Among the bills which failed and will be placed before the 76th Congress was one to equip a District of Columbia court room experimentally for sound recording, to determine whether phonograph records could supplement or replace the traditional court reporter's shorthand.

LONDON CLAIMS F. D. TO BLAME FOR DEPRESSION

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Ia., July 7—(UP)—Alf M. Landon, former governor of Kansas and 1936 Republican candidate, charged last night that the present depression is a direct result of the Roosevelt administration's policies and methods.

He predicted that unless those policies are changed the country will be right back in another depression as soon as the government's spend-lead program tapers off.

He spoke over a nation-wide radio broadcast in reply to the President's recent fire-side chat. His speech was the first of a series he plans to give during the coming congressional campaign.

He criticized the President for "financial recklessness," and said that if he "would practice what he preaches," as regards governmental administration, Republicans would cooperate with him to achieve social progress and economic recovery.

He admonished the President for not having taken a "decisive" stand during his fire-side chat against the free-spoken activities of Mayor Frank Hague, Jersey City, N. J., a vice-chairman of the Democratic national committee. The President had condemned Hague's policies by inference and Landon said he had welcomed even that "vague reference."

FARMERS URGED TO SAVE BIRDS

BURLINGTON, Vt., July 7—(UP)—Use of a "flushing-bar" on hay mowers is urged by Reuben R. Zile, acting project manager of the Soil Conservation Service here, to preserve wildlife.

"Birds have a definite economic value to the farmer. The farmer spends hundreds of dollars and many hours of labor in his ceaseless battle against destructive weeds and insects. Without his faithful allies—the birds—he would have little hope of winning the fight even for one season. His battle is easier in proportion to the number of birds living on his farm," Zile said.

Hay mowing machines destroy many game bird nests and eggs, as well as fledglings and grown birds. Surveys of hay fields, where pheasants most often nest, indicate that more than one-fourth of the adult hens are killed by mowers each year, while from one-half to three-fourths of their nests are destroyed, according to Zile.

"This serious loss largely can be avoided if the farmer will use a 'flushing-bar' on his mower," Zile says.

The flushing-bar warns the hen of the approaching mower, and when she flushes, the farmer stops the mower, locates the nest and leaves a protecting island of uncut hay around it by raising the cutter bar.

The flushing bar is a light bamboo pole, 12 feet long, attached horizontally at a right angle to the front of the tongue of the mower, with three or four short lengths of chain hung from the free end of the pole so as to drag through the hay ahead of the cutter-bar.

LEAD IS MINED FROM GROUNDS OF GUN RANGE

SIoux CITY, Ia. (UP)—An ingenious Nebraskan is reaping a profit at Sioux City through a new form of lead "mining."

The lead in this case was deposited by man more than a third of a century ago. It is in the form of pellets fired on the old Soo Gun Club grounds.

The grounds were abandoned years ago. The sandy soil on the Missouri river bottom southwest of the city's business section never was planted to crops and grew up with weeds and underbrush.

A few weeks ago Carl Harvey of Omaha, Neb., came to Sioux City, inspected the grounds, tested the soil for lead and determined to try his hand at "mining." He had done similar work at Omaha and Fremont, Neb.

He found the top several inches of soil filled with pellets fired by thousands of sportsmen at clay pigeons. Harvey rigged up a separating machine on the chassis of an old automobile. A large tank was filled with water and in it was placed an agitator.

Into the tank was dumped wheelbarrow loads of soil skimmed from the surface of the ground. The lead pellets, being heavier than the soil, sank to the bottom and the soil floated away as water was added.

A crew of five men operates the "mining" outfit.

REFORM BILLS FOR JUDICIARY TO BE REVIVED

Next Congress Expected To Take Up Five-Point Program

LEGISLATION PASSED

Proposals Get Attention Of Lawmakers

WASHINGTON, July 7—(UP)—The 75th Congress systematically passed more legislation to improve the efficiency of the Federal Judiciary than any other recent Congress.

Much of the program died with adjournment, but is certain to be revived by its sponsors and pushed to enactment in some form by the 76th Congress.

The series of laws began a year ago with the measure which hastened the death of the Supreme Court reorganization bill by permitting Supreme Court justices to retire with pay at 70, if they have served 10 years.

It ended with legislation providing 16 additional district judges and five circuit court judges.

Five Proposals Advanced
Much of the work was done by the house judiciary committee, authorized a year ago to make a complete study of the courts and recommend constructive legislation.

Scheduled by that committee for continued study and possible enactment next year are five important proposals:

1. Redistributing to equalize the areas and the amount of work of district courts. It was pushed out districts were shaped to conform with waterways and railroads, and do not coincide with motor roads.
2. Removal of unfit district judges. The house passed a bill to establish a court to remove judges for bad behavior. It died in the senate judiciary committee.
3. A "proctor" or administrative officer for the inferior courts, under either the Supreme Court or the senior circuit court judges to give courts financial autonomy and control over personnel apart from the Department of Justice.
4. Reduction and equalization of the costs of litigation to make the courts more accessible to persons of limited means.
5. Giving authority to U. S. Commissioners in minor matters so as to relieve judges of routine burdens.

Most spectacular of the laws affecting the judiciary enacted by the 75th Congress was the compromise court reorganization bill which shelved the proposal to enlarge the Supreme Court.

Speed Final Appeal
It requires a three-judge court to sit in cases to enforce enforcement of Federal statutes; permits the attorney general to intervene in cases where constitutionality is involved and provides direct appeal from district courts to the Supreme Court in constitutional cases.

Enactments of the last Congress included laws to restore the per diem fee of $4 to federal jurors; the municipal bankruptcy law sustained by the Supreme Court after another had been declared unconstitutional, and a number of bills to provide court terms in cities where there have been none.

Burglary and larceny in banks has been made a federal offense, like bank robbery. Penalties for narcotics law violation were increased. It was provided that federal prisoners be put to death in the manner employed by the state in which the execution occurs instead of universally by hanging.

New Regulations in 3 Months
In three months, new regulations for civil procedure in district courts go into effect. They were promulgated by the Supreme Court under authorization of a 1934 law providing they might be suspended by Congress.

Among the bills which failed and will be placed before the 76th Congress was one to equip a District of Columbia court room experimentally for sound recording, to determine whether phonograph records could supplement or replace the traditional court reporter's shorthand.

LONDON CLAIMS F. D. TO BLAME FOR DEPRESSION

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Ia., July 7—(UP)—Alf M. Landon, former governor of Kansas and 1936 Republican candidate, charged last night that the present depression is a direct result of the Roosevelt administration's policies and methods.

He predicted that unless those policies are changed the country will be right back in another depression as soon as the government's spend-lead program tapers off.

He spoke over a nation-wide radio broadcast in reply to the President's recent fire-side chat. His speech was the first of a series he plans to give during the coming congressional campaign.

He criticized the President for "financial recklessness," and said that if he "would practice what he preaches," as regards governmental administration, Republicans would cooperate with him to achieve social progress and economic recovery.

He admonished the President for not having taken a "decisive" stand during his fire-side chat against the free-spoken activities of Mayor Frank Hague, Jersey City, N. J., a vice-chairman of the Democratic national committee. The President had condemned Hague's policies by inference and Landon said he had welcomed even that "vague reference."

PASTOR VOICES DANGERS OF FASCISM, COMMUNISM

FARMERS URGED TO SAVE BIRDS

BURLINGTON, Vt., July 7—(UP)—Use of a "flushing-bar" on hay mowers is urged by Reuben R. Zile, acting project manager of the Soil Conservation Service here, to preserve wildlife.

"Birds have a definite economic value to the farmer. The farmer spends hundreds of dollars and many hours of labor in his ceaseless battle against destructive weeds and insects. Without his faithful allies—the birds—he would have little hope of winning the fight even for one season. His battle is easier in proportion to the number of birds living on his farm," Zile said.

Hay mowing machines destroy many game bird nests and eggs, as well as fledglings and grown birds. Surveys of hay fields, where pheasants most often nest, indicate that more than one-fourth of the adult hens are killed by mowers each year, while from one-half to three-fourths of their nests are destroyed, according to Zile.

"This serious loss largely can be avoided if the farmer will use a 'flushing-bar' on his mower," Zile says.

The flushing-bar warns the hen of the approaching mower, and when she flushes, the farmer stops the mower, locates the nest and leaves a protecting island of uncut hay around it by raising the cutter bar.

The flushing bar is a light bamboo pole, 12 feet long, attached horizontally at a right angle to the front of the tongue of the mower, with three or four short lengths of chain hung from the free end of the pole so as to drag through the hay ahead of the cutter-bar.

COULDN'T FIND A THING TO HELP STOMACH UNTIL SHE TOOK TON JON

Washington C. H. Lady was afraid to eat until she took Ton Jon. Got prompt relief from Gas, Dizzy Spells and Sick Headaches. Doesn't have to take laxatives any more.

MRS. CORA GRIMM

Read what this local lady, Mrs. Cora Grimm of 924 East Market, Washington C. H., O., has to say about Ton Jon: "My stomach got so bad that everything I tried to eat turned to gas and bloated me. My stomach was in such misery that I couldn't eat a hearty meal. Acid foods were worse than anything else, everything I ate seemed to disagree with me, causing so much suffering that I was afraid to eat. My bowels were always constipated. I had what they call chronic constipation. I became a constant user of laxatives and physics every night. I thought I would never FIND anything to help me, but when I got Ton Jon, it went right to the seat of my trouble. It started right in to work the stomach misery out of my system and I never have those awful gas pains and fluttering of the heart any more. The dizzy spells and sick headaches have gone. It gave my bowels a great cleansing. They have gotten so they are regular each day and I never need a laxative or physic now. I certainly am thankful of its wonderful action on my bowels and WHAT THIS GREAT MEDICINE DID TO ME, and I am glad to add my name with other people who are endorsing it."

If you have Stomach, Kidney, Liver or Prostate disorders or are Constipated, Nervous, Weak, Rundown, come in and talk to HAMILTON & RYAN, Circleville, Ohio.

MORGAN SEEKS REINSTATEMENT ON PROBE EVE

Ousted Chairman Of T.V.A. Claims President Does Not Have Ouster Power

DONAHEY IN KNOXVILLE

Investigation To Start Next Monday

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., July 7.—(UP)—The Tennessee Valley Authority, object of a congressional investigation, was further troubled today by Dr. Arthur E. Morgan's suit for reinstatement to the chairmanship, from which he was ousted by President Roosevelt for "contumacy."

Dr. Morgan filed his suit late yesterday, demanding both his former job and $2,900 back salary, at about the same time that Sen. Vic Donahey, D., arrived from Washington to preside over a joint senate-house investigation of T. V. A. that he said would begin Monday.

Morgan filed his case before Chancellor A. E. Mitchell in state chancery court, since his claim was for less than $3,000 and therefore not a federal court matter. "The attempted removal of the complainant from the office as a member of the board was and is illegal and void for the reason that such removal could be accomplished only by a concurrent resolution of the senate and house of representatives of the United States as provided in the T. V. A. act, and no such resolution was passed," the petition said.

Directors Defendants

The T. V. A. board, and the two directors, Harcourt A. Morgan and David E. Lilienthal, were named defendants. They have until July 22 to file their answer. By that time the congressional committee expects to have under way its intensive investigation of the tumultuous affairs of the New Deal power and flood control project, which were featured by bitter wrangling among Dr. Morgan and the other two directors before he was ousted. Dr. Morgan had accused his fellow members of various acts of mismanagement. President Roosevelt called them together March 23, demanded that Dr. Morgan substantiate his charges, and when he persistently declined to reply to direct questions, Mr. Roosevelt discharged him.

Dr. Morgan had been reported planning to resist the ouster by court action. He chose this operating headquarters of T. V. A. to file his suit, and at a time when congressional investigators were arriving to open their hearings.

Dr. Morgan was not present when his mandamus was filed. He left his home at Xenia, O., last night for Philadelphia to deliver three speeches at Pendle Hill, a school there. Asked what he thought of his chances of reinstatement, he said: "I'm not very good at making forecasts. I'll let my attorneys do that for me." He reiterated his idea that T. V. A. act did not give President Roosevelt power of removing a director.

Pace Not Filled

Dr. Morgan's place on the board had not been filled. Harcourt A. Morgan was elevated to the chairmanship when Dr. Morgan left.

After he had declined to explain his grievances to President Roosevelt, Dr. Morgan said that he had been saving them for a congressional hearing.

Headaches, backaches and painful muscles added to my misery. "Vendol" did a swell job by relieving the constipation and acting as a mild diuretic to my kidneys and now I feel 15 years younger and advise everyone suffering this way to get Vendol at once."

Collections at Berger hospital for the first six months of the year amounted to $8,561.88 while expenses were $9,558.28.

Accounts receivable amount to $1,605.31 and charitable cases $170.46.

The report shows 11 patients were in the institution on Jan. 1. During the first six months 218 were admitted, 270 treated, 219 discharged, 12 deaths, 37 births, 59 operations, and days of care amounted to 1,777.

Collections at the hospital last month amounted to $2,035.45, the highest since the hospital was opened.

The first six months business is believed the largest since the institution was opened about eight years ago.

C.I.O. TO FIGHT CHIEF'S ARREST IN NEWTON, IA.

Strike At Maytag Plant Leads To Jailing Of Vice President

MAYOR ASKS TROOPS

Non-Union Workers Give Up Attempt To Work

NEWTON, Ia., July 7.—(UP)—The Committee for Industrial Organization prepared a finish fight today to free William Sentner, of St. Louis, its regional vice president, indicted on two counts charging criminal syndicalism.

Sentner's indictment grew out of the strike of members of the United Electrical, Radio, and Machine Workers union, a C.I.O. affiliate, which has closed the Maytag Washing Machine company plant here.

Sentner's arrest, the renewed request of Mayor George Campbell for National Guard troops. And the refusal of the strikers to accept a settlement plan advanced by Gov. Nelson Kraschel had further intensified the atmosphere.

The workers went on strike rather than accept a 10 percent wage reduction in their new union contract. Gov. Kraschel had wanted them to accept the cut tentatively and return to work, pending negotiations.

The plant, which normally employs 1,400 men and provides the principal means of support for the community, has been closed since May 9.

Mayor Campbell appealed to Gov. Kraschel for the second time in 10 days for national guardsmen to take control of the situation. The plant was guarded closely by police details as a precaution against a renewal of violence which broke out early Wednesday for the first time since the strike started.

The governor had refused to send troops on the first request last week because there had been no violence.

Yesterday about 600 pickets were gathered in front of the plant. Approximately 200 non-strikers assembled two blocks away and started marching toward the factory. As they approached, an equal number of strikers moved out to meet them. It appeared for a time that they

MASSILLON TO DECIDE ON 10-YEAR LIGHT CONTRACT

COLUMBUS, July 7.—(UP)—The state supreme court today had ordered the Massillon city council to hold a referendum election on a 1937 ordinance fixing rates to be charged over a 10-year period by the Ohio Public Service Company for electric service.

It issued a writ of mandamus sought by Clarence W. Portmann to compel council to pass an ordinance for a special referendum election as requested in petitions which he presented in December, 1937.

Subsequently in February, 1938, council defeated an ordinance proposing a referendum.

WATCH FOR BAGWORMS ON YOUR EVERGREENS

This is the time of year to keep a close lookout for bagworms on evergreens. They appear most often on arbor vitae and on spruce although they will attack almost any type of evergreen.

You will note the presence of the worms as a cone like object about a quarter of an inch long which will be moving slightly. The worm eats the foliage and surrounds himself as he grows with a cocoon of the leaves of the evergreen he is consuming and because the leaves stay green he looks like a cone growing on the tree. Before you notice any dead foliage the tree will be very badly damaged. As soon as the presence of the bagworms is noted; spray with a mixture of two and one half tablespoons level full of arsenate of lead mixed in a gallon of water keeping the mixture agitated while operating the spray machine.

MORGAN SEEKS REINSTATEMENT ON PROBE EVE

Ousted Chairman Of T.V.A. Claims President Does Not Have Ouster Power

DONAHEY IN KNOXVILLE

Investigation To Start Next Monday

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., July 7.—(UP)—The Tennessee Valley Authority, object of a congressional investigation, was further troubled today by Dr. Arthur E. Morgan's suit for reinstatement to the chairmanship, from which he was ousted by President Roosevelt for "contumacy."

Dr. Morgan filed his suit late yesterday, demanding both his former job and $2,900 back salary, at about the same time that Sen. Vic Donahey, D., arrived from Washington to preside over a joint senate-house investigation of T. V. A. that he said would begin Monday.

Morgan filed his case before Chancellor A. E. Mitchell in state chancery court, since his claim was for less than $3,000 and therefore not a federal court matter.

"The attempted removal of the complainant from the office as a member of the board was and is illegal and void for the reason that such removal could be accomplished only by a concurrent resolution of the senate and house of representatives of the United States as provided in the T. V. A. act, and no such resolution was passed," the petition said.

Directors Defendants

The T. V. A. board, and the two directors, Harcourt A. Morgan and David E. Lilienthal, were named defendants. They have until July 22 to file their answer. By that time the congressional committee expects to have under way its intensive investigation of the tumultuous affairs of the New Deal power and flood control project, which were featured by bitter wrangling among Dr. Morgan and the other two directors before he was ousted.

Dr. Morgan had accused his fellow members of various acts of mismanagement. President Roosevelt called them together March 23, demanded that Dr. Morgan substantiate his charges, and when he persistently declined to reply to direct questions, Mr. Roosevelt discharged him.

Dr. Morgan had been reported planning to resist the ouster by court action. He chose this operating headquarters of T. V. A. to file his suit, and at a time when congressional investigators were arriving to open their hearings.

Dr. Morgan was not present when his mandamus was filed. He left his home at Xenia, O., last night for Philadelphia to deliver three speeches at Pendle Hill, a school there. Asked what he thought of his chances of reinstatement, he said: "I'm not very good at making forecasts. I'll let my attorneys do that for me." He reiterated his idea that T. V. A. act did not give President Roosevelt power of removing a director.

Pace Not Filled

Dr. Morgan's place on the board has not been filled. Harcourt A. Morgan was elevated to the chairmanship when Dr. Morgan left.

After he had declined to explain his grievances to President Roosevelt, Dr. Morgan said that he had been saving them for a congressional hearing.

DID SWELL JOB SAYS CONTRACTOR

Declares "Vendol" not only relieved his ailments but now has him feeling 15 years younger.

Mr. L. L. Kline, prominent Building Contractor of Republic, Ohio, near Tiffin, Ohio, says: "I had not been feeling well for some time. Some days I felt alright, then again, constipation brought on acid indigestion and shooting pains all through my body. My sleep was broken so much at night that I felt tired out all the time. Headaches, backaches and painful muscles added to my misery. 'Vendol' did a swell job by relieving the constipation and acting as a mild diuretic to my kidneys and now I feel 15 years younger and advise everyone suffering this way to get Vendol at once."

The first six months business is believed the largest since the institution was opened about eight years ago.

C.I.O. TO FIGHT CHIEF'S ARREST IN NEWTON, IA.

Strike At Maytag Plant Leads To Jailing Of Vice President

MAYOR ASKS TROOPS

Non-Union Workers Give Up Attempt To Work

NEWTON, Ia., July 7.—(UP)—The Committee for Industrial Organization prepared a finish fight today to free William Sentner, of St. Louis, its regional vice president, indicted on two counts charging criminal syndicalism.

Sentner's indictment grew out of the strike of members of the United Electrical, Radio, and Machine Workers union, a C. I. O. affiliate, which has closed the Maytag Washing Machine company plant here.

Sentner's arrest, the renewed request of Mayor George Campbell for National Guard troops. And the refusal of the strikers to accept a settlement plan advanced by Gov. Nelson Kraschel had further intensified the atmosphere.

The workers went on strike rather than accept a 10 percent wage reduction in their new union contract. Gov. Kraschel had wanted them to accept the cut tentatively and return to work, pending negotiations.

The plant, which normally employs 1,400 men and provides the principal means of support for the community, has been closed since May 9.

Mayor Campbell appealed to Gov. Kraschel for the second time in 10 days for national guardsmen to take control of the situation. The plant was guarded closely by police details as a precaution against a renewal of violence which broke out early Wednesday for the first time since the strike started.

The governor had refused to send troops on the first request last week because there had been no violence.

Yesterday about 600 pickets were gathered in front of the plant. Approximately 200 non-strikers assembled two blocks away and started marching toward the factory. As they approached, an equal number of strikers moved out to meet them. It appeared for a time that they

COLUMBUS, July 7.—(UP)—The state supreme court today had ordered the Massillon city council to hold a referendum election on a 1937 ordinance fixing rates to be charged over a 10-year period by the Ohio Public Service Company for electric service.

It issued a writ of mandamus sought by Clarence W. Portmann to compel council to pass an ordinance for a special referendum election as requested in petitions which he presented in December, 1937.

Subsequently in February, 1938, council defeated an ordinance proposing a referendum.

As they dispersed, Jerrey Geise and E. E. Alger, employees of the company, attempted to pass a picket line at another section of the plant. Geise was slugged and knocked unconscious. Alger's shirt was torn from his back.

WATCH FOR BAGWORMS ON YOUR EVERGREENS

This is the time of year to keep a close lookout for bagworms on evergreens. They appear most often on arbor vitae and on spruce although they will attack almost any type of evergreen.

A quarter of an inch long which will be moving slightly. The worm eats the foliage and surrounds himself as he grows with a cocoon of the leaves of the evergreen he is consuming and because the leaves stay green he looks like a cone growing on the tree. Before you notice any dead foliage the tree will be very badly damaged. As soon as the presence of the bagworms is noted; spray with a mixture of two and one half tablespoons level full of arsenate of lead mixed in a gallon of water keeping the mixture agitated while operating the spray machine.

SEEING AMERICA

HERE is a Summer college course which may sound like a vacation but which should be of real educational value. Fourteen normal school students and two professors will travel for sixty-two days, covering 12,500 miles, going from coast to coast and visiting twenty-six States. The special subjects to be studied will include national parks, dam and power projects, university campuses, laboratories, observatories, industrial centers and Hollywood movie lots.

One of the professors describes the course as an effort "to train intelligent teachers who will have a first-hand knowledge of American life as it is today." Students' fees of $500 to $600 will meet only a part of the actual cost. The deficit will be met by an educational foundation. There have been previous trips, including one to New England.

It has long been customary for American teachers to travel abroad, to the benefit of themselves and their pupils. Such extensive and intensive trips in their own country, particularly in these times, should be of equal or greater importance than foreign travel. Americans need to know their own country better, its scenic wonders, its variety, its products, its customs, its people. In such understanding lies a greater appreciation of our government and our precious heritage of human liberty.

A PLACE FOR WALKERS

THERE has been a good deal of talk of paved sidewalks or good footpaths along highways, but nothing much has been done. A ruling of the State Supreme Court of Pennsylvania may start real action along this line.

An eleven-year-old boy and his crippled sister were struck by a truck when they were walking near the side of a paved road. Their father sued for damages and won in the lower court. It was taken to the state Supreme Court where the award was upheld. The judges declared that pedestrians have equal rights with automobiles, and that if they are walking "along the right portion of a paved roadway" they are not required to turn and look for approaching traffic or step off the highway to permit an automobile to pass. The driver, apparently, must watch for them and go around them to the left as he would go around another automobile.

This obtains, of course, only where there are no sidewalks. If other states follow the example, as they are likely to do, two early results may be expected. More people will feel free to claim their pedestrian rights and the movement for highway sidewalks will be hastened.

The glorious Fourth isn't so gory any more, but there's still too much racket for grown-ups.

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . Hour by Hour

PAGES from the Diary of an Antiquated Reporter:

Up to find another hot day and much complaint against the weatherman. Seems to me that I heard much wishing for just such weather as this last Winter when the near-zero winds were blowing. I like Summer. Headed for the post and picked up T. P. Brown. It must be something in the air that keeps local folk from showing their age. I almost fell out of the wagon when he told me the total of his years.

Chatted with a pair of farmers who knew me, but whose names I could not recall. They discussed world affairs. "We are told," they said, "that the price of our produce is governed by the law of supply and demand." Then one of them asked an interesting question. "Labor," he declared, "also is a product. But that never is affected by the law of supply and demand. According to the price paid day laborers we should be getting at least $3 a bushel for our wheat." Who can blame the farmers for growling. I would growl and yell too if 63 cents was all I could get for wheat raised by the sweat of my brow in 14 hour days on $100 an acre land.

Ham Rodgers and Carl Bennett dropped in to pick up some Canadian pictures taken by the scrivener. Ham wished to study them, for he is planning a month's vacation trip into the north woods and hopes to induce Clayt Chalfin and Guy Pettit to spend part of that time with him.

Out for a turn around the paves, falling in with Ed Mason whose store basement I would like to rent for the Summer. It is the coolest place in town. Chatted with George Grand-Girard and received my ration of chewing gum. Met Captain Eddy, who is here from the northern part of the state seeking to sell some saddle stock to the Paul Adkins. The captain is quite famous as a riding master. At one time he attempted to show me how to stay topside, but before meeting him I had so much experience in falling off that his instruction never quite took root.

Met Doctor Jackson, who soon is to take off on his annual trip to National Guard camp, and passed the time of day with Wallace Crist. Everywhere the baseball fans were envious of the few fortunate ones spending the day in Cincinnati where the Nationals took the Americans apart. That pleased me, too. Not that I am much of a baseball fan, but because I generally favor the under dog and those Americans have had everything their own way for entirely too long.

In the late afternoon did drive to the swimming pool at Gold Cliff, spending a half hour in envy of those enjoying the cooling waters. I wonder whether the moths have left anything of that swim suit of mine? I must find out.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN.

REASONS FOR MARTIN

WASHINGTON—There were two reasons why William McChesney Martin, 31-year-old chairman of the board of the New York Stock Exchange, was picked as its first salaried president.

One was the inability of the governors to find an acceptable "outsider." They offered the $48,000-a-year job to four nationally known leaders, John Biggers, head of the Libby-Owens-Ford Glass Company and director of last winter's Unemployment Census; Arthur Andersen, head of one of the four most important accounting firms in the country; General Robert Wood, head of Sears, Roebuck & Company; and Robert Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago.

All sent their regrets. The governors could not agree on any of the numerous other "outsiders" suggested, and they finally dropped the idea of naming a non-Wall Streeter.

Second reason for Martin's selection was his quiet but striking demonstration of ability and courage in handling the job of board chairman.

The young St. Louis broker was elected chairman of the Stock Exchange board in last spring's house-cleaning of the Old Guard element which had ruled the Exchange for years. One of the key Old Guardians was Roland Redmond, general counsel of the Exchange and lieutenant of the recently jailed Richard Whitney.

Whitney and Redmond had been leaders of the long and unyielding fight against the Pecora banking probe, later against SEC regulation of the stock market. When Whitney was displaced as head of the Exchange in 1936, he retained influence by continuing his friend Redmond as general counsel.

Recently the reform group, who favor cooperating with Washington and long have been gunning for Redmond, gave chairman Martin the job of ousting him. Word of this caused a furious under-cover struggle. Old Guardians rallied behind Redmond, and tremendous pressure was brought on Martin to "lay off."

He went straight down the line, however. He summoned Redmond to his office and asked for his written resignation. That ended the fight.

The board of governors, impressed with this demonstration of forceful leadership, then decided that Martin was the man they were looking for to fill the presidential job. Thus a 31-year-old youngster now steps from the non-paying and much less potent job of chairman of the Stock Exchange board, to the powerful, active presidency, with a salary of $48,000 a year.

SKUNK OIL

The Justice Department is always getting letters suggesting new methods for catching criminals.

Here is the latest, from a Chicago woman, proposing that bank clerks be equipped with squirt guns containing "skunk oil". The clerks were to spray bank robbers with the oil, the odor of which would be so noticeable that it would be easy to trace the burglars.

"And it would do them no good," the writer continued, "to bury their clothes because if they did that, they would be naked and their movements would be greatly hampered."

How and When to Give Cod Liver Oil to Babies

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
THE FOLLOWING pertinent question has come in the mail:

O. Q. R.: "Is there any special technique or method of giving cod liver oil to a baby? Should it be given in the summer, too, when the baby gets so much sunshine?"

Answer: Cod liver oil should be given in the morning and at bedtime when the stomach is empty. The mother should place the very young baby on her lap and hold the mouth open by gently pressing the cheeks together between her thumb and fingers, while she administers the oil. By this means all of it will be taken. The baby soon becomes accustomed to taking the oil without having its mouth held open.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

The mother should administer the oil in a matter of fact manner, without any cooing or clucking noises of sympathy. If given cold, cod liver oil has little taste because the cold tends to paralyze momentarily the taste buds and gustatory nerves. As any taste is largely a metallic one from the silver or silver-plated spoon—particularly if the plating is worn—a glass spoon has an advantage.

A concentrated Vitamin D and A cod liver oil has an advantage because less of it has to be given.

It is better to be on the safe side and give cod liver oil in the summer as well as in the winter. The purpose of giving cod liver oil is especially to furnish Vitamin D so as to prevent rickets. The body is able to manufacture its own Vitamin D in the presence of sunshine. In the old days rickets occurred especially at the end of the dark winter months when the body has been deprived of sunshine. But the mechanisms of Vitamin D production are complicated and sometimes things go wrong.

There was published not long ago the picture of a child who had developed rickets in spite of the fact that it had lived all its life in the sunshine of California. It was graphically entitled, "It Can Happen Here, Too." I have been told by a medical observer that he saw a great deal of rickets among the children in Central America, despite the fact that they live in an almost tropic sun.

Something went wrong with the mechanism for manufacturing Vitamin D by sunshine—the chemistry of the skin failed to function or the liver failed to store the vitamin. And this might happen any time if sunshine alone were depended on. So it is better to give cod liver oil also, to be on the safe side.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS
W. C.: "What is the meaning of the term 'appetite juice'?"

Answer: It is stomach secretion formed just before the time of eating, influenced by smell and the gustatory sensations of the food. In short, it is stimulated by the relish or expectancy for the food. Since it is secreted only when we are in a hurry, when we anticipate a good meal, this suggests the importance of leisurely eating and well-cooked meals.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Seven pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

"Is anything wrong?"

READ THIS FIRST:

Noel Shayne, wealthy society girl, is in love with Dr. Julian Faige, serious-minded young physician who declares he will not permit himself to fall in love with Noel because of the contrasting worlds in which they live. Determined to show Julian she has stamina, Noel gives up a long trip with her aunt, turns over her income of $100,000 to her uncle who is in financial difficulties, buys her first outfit of inexpensive clothes and tells Julian she is going to find a job. After moving to a dingy rooming house, she finds an ad for a governess. About to start on her new adventure, she finds her purse has been stolen, leaving her with only $5. Applying for the governess post, Noel is given a cool reception and no job. Later, dropping in at Julian's office, she is irked by the antagonistic manner of Ruth Chester, his pretty nurse.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 5

AFTER RUTH CHESTER shut the door of Julian's office in Noel's face, Noel walked across the street to the De Luxe, and had a solitary dinner of doughnuts and coffee. It was all she could afford, if she hoped to make her money last until she found a job.

The next morning when she awakened, her stomach was clamoring wildly for food. She knew that regardless of what it might cost, she would have to have a substantial meal before she could even hope to accomplish a thing.

She dressed in the suit, a fresh linen blouse, put on the comfortable oxford, pulled the blue felt hat with its perky high crown down over her blond curls, and went to the same little cafe where she had breakfasted before. After eggs, bacon, toast and coffee, she again felt capable of meeting her problems.

Buying a newspaper, she went over once more to the little Front street park, being careful to keep her bag in her lap while she studied the advertisements.

There didn't seem to be a thing she could fill. She read the ads over several times, in the hope that she might have overlooked something. She couldn't help a little sigh when she thought of the expensive finishing schools she had attended. Why hadn't she been taught something useful such as stenography and typing? Then it wouldn't have been any trouble to find a job.

Suddenly Noel realized that a girl was sitting on the bench next to her, a shabby suitcase on the ground at her feet. She was brown-haired and brown-eyed. There were little brown freckles on her winsome face. Noel also saw after a second glance that there were unmistakable traces of tears around her eyes.

On a sudden impulse, Noel moved to the edge of the bench and asked, "Is anything wrong?"

The girl lifted her brown eyes and looked at Noel coolly. "Plenty," she said and then lapsed into silence.

After a moment, Noel said gently, "Perhaps it would help to tell somebody about it."

The girl looked at Noel again, as if stung by her up. She seemed to decide at last that Noel wanted to be friendly, so she said with a little shrug. "Oh, it's the same old story. I got fired last night. And I'm broke. The landlady put me out, and I was lucky to get away with my clothes."

While Noel was trying to decide what she could say to comfort her, the girl went on bitterly. "Can you believe it? There are girls in the world who sleep in satin beds with maids to wait on 'em, and everything in the world they want, and then there are girls like me, who don't even know whether they're going to eat or not. Funny, isn't it?"

"It—doesn't seem fair," Noel admitted. "Where did you work?" she asked.

"Taxi dancer at Nick Luigi's club on Seventh street. It wasn't the kind of job I wanted," the girl went on, "but you were paid every night, and that gave you a chance during the day to look for the sort of job you did want. Only I never did find it."

Noel had only a vague idea of what a taxi dancer's duties were, but she didn't ask. Instead, she said, "Well, I haven't a job either. But I'm sure I'll get one before long."

"Then why don't you go get the one at Nick's?" the girl suddenly exclaimed. "Blondes like you—"

she began.

"Do you think I could?" Noel asked quickly.

"If you can dance, honey, it's in the bag," the girl said. A few minutes later Noel knew this girl's simple story. Her name was Laurie Evans, she had come from a little country town, where she had been brought up in an orphanage, and had found a place as cashier in a restaurant. For over a year she had stayed there, and then the place had been sold, and the new owner put his wife in as cashier. Since then, she hadn't been able to find anything except the job at Luigi's.

"I'm going right over there now and see if I can get it," Noel said. "And if I do," she went on firmly, "you and I are going to go fifty-fifty. Now you promise to wait here until I come back and let you know."

Laurie looked at her, a flush on her little freckled face. "Would you honestly take me in? You don't know a thing about me."

"Of course I'm going to do that very thing," Noel said with a smile.

Admiring Laurie again to wait right there, Noel set out at once for Nick Luigi's club. She found it without any trouble. There was a gilded peacock sign over the door, which was probably lighted by electricity at night. But inside it was very dismal looking, the floor covered with crumpled paper napkins and all kind of debris, the chairs up-ended in the corners, and empty bottles everywhere.

Noel asked a man in a soiled white jacket who was ambling around with a dust pan, where she could find Mr. Luigi.

Another minute and she was facing him, a dark man with pale eyes, either blue or gray, and a black mustache. He had a cigar in one corner of his mouth, and he spoke in a surprisingly distinct voice, although hardly moving his lips.

"If you can dance, baby, the job's yours."

Noel could dance. That was one thing she had learned at the expensive finishing school.

She was given a tryout while a frowsy-haired man played a dance slection on a rather rattled grand piano. Both men gave nods of approval when Noel finished the pretty solo dance.

Nick Luigi took the cigar from his mouth and said in his queer, rather secretive voice, "You'll do, kid. Don't know where you learned to dance like that, but you're the very sort of kid we're looking for."

Noel had a job for which she would be paid a flat sum of $2 every night. She and Laurie could have a good lunch now, and she would take the girl home with her to the room on Court street.

It was surprising how the prospect of a good meal cheered Noel. Two dollars seemed like real money.

She hurried back to Front Street park to tell Laurie the good news. They sat there a while and talked things over, then had lunch, after which Noel gave Laurie a dollar out of her little store, and the address on Court street.

Laurie, who had at first regarded Noel's offer of friendship with a slight suspicion, believed in her completely now. "I never dreamed of finding a friend like you," she said with tears in her eyes. "But I'll get a job and soon—day I'll pay you back."

Noel gave her a friendly touch on the shoulder. "We'll both get jobs sooner or later. Then everything will be fine."

Noel knew already that she wasn't going to stay at the Peacock Dance Hall any longer than she could find something else. The building was nice enough, in good repair, consisting of three stories of finding a friend like you," she said with tears in her eyes. "But I'll get a job and soon—day I'll pay you back."

Walking down Madison, when Noel had about reached the cafe, she saw Ruth Chester coming out of the revolving doors of the Medical Arts building—and following her was Julian. He started to walk on with Ruth. Then he saw Noel and quickly crossed the street. "Look here, young lady," he exclaimed, taking Noel's arm. "I've got something serious to say to you."

SEEING AMERICA

HERE is a Summer college course which may sound like a vacation but which should be of real educational value. Fourteen normal school students and two professors will travel for sixty-two days, covering 12,500 miles, going from coast to coast and visiting twenty-six States. The special subjects to be studied will include national parks, dam and power projects, university campuses, laboratories, observatories, industrial centers and Hollywood movie lots.

One of the professors describes the course as an effort "to train intelligent teachers who will have a first-hand knowledge of American life as it is today." Students' fees of $500 to $600 will meet only a part of the actual cost. The deficit will be met by an educational foundation. There have been previous trips, including one to New England.

It has long been customary for American teachers to travel abroad, to the benefit of themselves and their pupils. Such extensive and intensive trips in their own country, particularly in these times, should be of equal or greater importance than foreign travel. Americans need to know their own country better, its scenic wonders, its variety, its products, its customs, its people. In such understanding lies a greater appreciation of our government and our precious heritage of human liberty.

A PLACE FOR WALKERS

THERE has been a good deal of talk of paved sidewalks or good footpaths along highways, but nothing much has been done. A ruling of the State Supreme Court of Pennsylvania may start real action along this line.

An eleven-year-old boy and his crippled sister were struck by a truck when they were walking near the side of a paved road. Their father sued for damages and won in the lower court. It was taken to the state Supreme Court where the award was upheld. The judges declared that pedestrians have equal rights with automobiles, and that if they are walking "along the right portion of a paved roadway" they are not required to turn and look for approaching traffic or step off the highway to permit an automobile to pass. The driver, apparently, must watch for them and go around them to the left as he would go around another automobile.

This obtains, of course, only where there are no sidewalks. If other states follow the example, as they are likely to do, two early results may be expected. More people will feel free to claim their pedestrian rights and the movement for highway sidewalks will be hastened.

The glorious Fourth isn't so gory any more, but there's still too much racket for grown-ups.

Up to find another hot day and much complaint against the weatherman. Seems to me that I heard much wishing for just such weather as this last Winter when the near-zero winds were blowing. I almost fell out of the wagon when he told me the total of his years.

Chatted with a pair of farmers who knew me, but whose names I could not recall. They discussed world affairs. "We are told," they said, "that the price of our produce is governed by the law of supply and demand." Then one of them asked an interesting question. "Labor," he declared, "also is a product. But that never is affected by the law of supply and demand. According to the price paid day laborers we should be getting at least $3 a bushel for our wheat." Who can blame the farmers for growling. I would growl and yell too if 63 cents was all I could get for wheat raised by the sweat of my brow in 14 hour days on $100 an acre land.

Met Doctor Jackson, who soon is to take off on his annual trip to National Guard camp, and passed the time of day with Wallace Crist. Everywhere the baseball fans were envious of the few fortunate ones spending the day in Cincinnati where the Nationals took the Americans apart. That pleased me, too. Not that I am much of a baseball fan, but because I generally favor the under dog and those Americans have had everything their own way for entirely too long.

In the late afternoon did drive to the swimming pool at Gold Cliff, spending a half hour in envy of those enjoying the cooling waters. I wonder whether the moths have left anything of that swim suit of mine? I must find out.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN.

REASONS FOR MARTIN

WASHINGTON—There were two reasons why William McChesney Martin, 31-year-old chairman of the board of the New York Stock Exchange, was picked as its first salaried president.

One was the inability of the governors to find an acceptable "outsider". They offered the $48,000-a-year job to four nationally known leaders, John Biggers, head of the Libby-Owens-Ford Glass Company and director of last winter's Unemployment Census; Arthur Andersen, head of one of the four most important accounting firms in the country; General Robert Wood, head of Sears, Roebuck & Company; and Robert Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago.

All sent their regrets. The governors could not agree on any of the numerous other "outsiders" suggested, and they finally dropped the idea of naming a non-Wall Streeter.

Second reason for Martin's selection was his quiet but striking demonstration of ability and courage in handling the job of board chairman.

The young St. Louis broker was elected chairman of the Stock Exchange board in last spring's house-cleaning of the Old Guard element which had ruled the Exchange for years. One of the key Old Guardians was Roland Redmond, general counsel of the Exchange and lieutenant of the recently jailed Richard Whitney.

Whitney and Redmond had been leaders of the long and unyielding fight against the Pecora banking probe, later against SEC regulation of the stock market. When Whitney was displaced as head of the Exchange in 1936, he retained influence by continuing his friend Redmond as general counsel.

Recently the reform group, who favor cooperating with Washington and long have been gunning for Redmond, gave chairman Martin the job of ousting him.

Word of this caused a furious under-cover struggle. Old Guardians rallied behind Redmond, and tremendous pressure was brought on Martin to "lay off".

He went straight down the line, however. He summoned Redmond to his office and asked for his written resignation. That ended the fight.

The board of governors, impressed with this demonstration of forceful leadership, then decided that Martin was the man they were looking for to fill the presidential job. Thus a 31-year-old youngster now steps from the non-paying and much less potent job of chairman of the Stock Exchange board, to the powerful, active presidency, with a salary of $48,000 a year.

SKUNK OIL

The Justice Department is always getting letters suggesting new methods for catching criminals.

Here is the latest, from a Chicago woman, proposing that bank clerks be equipped with squirt guns containing "skunk oil". The clerks were to spray bank robbers with the oil, the odor of which would be so noticeable that it would be easy to trace the burglars.

"And it would do them no good," the writer continued, "to bury their clothes because if they did that, they would be naked and their movements would be greatly hampered."

How and When to Give Cod Liver Oil to Babies

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
THE FOLLOWING pertinent question has come in the mail:

O. Q. R.: "Is there any special technique or method of giving cod liver oil to a baby? Should it be given in the summer, too, when the baby gets so much sunshine?"

Answer: Cod liver oil should be given in the morning and at bedtime when the stomach is empty. The mother should place the very young baby on her lap and hold the mouth open by gently pressing the cheeks together between her thumb and fingers, while she administers the oil. By this means all of it will be taken. The baby soon becomes accustomed to taking the oil without having its mouth held open.

The mother should administer the oil in a matter of fact manner, without any cooing or clucking noises of sympathy. If given cold, cod liver oil has little taste because the cold tends to paralyze momentarily the taste buds and gustatory nerves. As any taste is largely a metallic one from the silver or silver-plated spoon—particularly if the spout is worn—a glass spoon has an advantage.

A concentrated Vitamin D and A cod liver oil has an advantage because less of it has to be given. It is better to be on the safe side and give cod liver oil in the summer as well as in the winter. The purpose of giving cod liver oil is especially to furnish Vitamin D so as to prevent rickets. The body is able to manufacture its own Vitamin D in the presence of sunshine. In the old days rickets occurred especially at the end of the dark winter months when the body had been deprived of sunshine. But the mechanisms of Vitamin D production are complicated and sometimes things go wrong.

There was published not long ago the picture of a child who had developed rickets in spite of the fact that it had lived all its life in the sunshine of California. It was graphically entitled, "It Can Happen Here, Too!" I have been told by a medical observer that he saw a great deal of rickets among the children in Central America, despite the fact that they live in an almost tropic sun.

Something went wrong with the mechanism for manufacturing Vitamin D by sunshine—the chemistry of the skin failed to function or the liver failed to store the vitamin. And this might happen any time if sunshine alone were depended on. So it is better to give cod liver oil also, to be on the safe side.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

W. C.: "What is the meaning of the term 'appetite juice'?"

Answer: It is stomach secretion formed just before the time of eating, influenced by smell and the gustatory sensations of the food. In short, it is stimulated by the smell or expectancy for the food. Since it is secreted only when we are not in a hurry, when we anticipate a good meal, this suggests the importance of leisurely eating and well-cooked meals.

"Is anything wrong?"

READ THIS FIRST:

Noel Shayne, wealthy society girl, is in love with Dr. Julian Paige, a serious-minded young physician who declares he will not permit himself to fall in love with Noel because of the contrasting worlds in which they live. Determined to show Julian she has brains, Noel gives him a long trip with her aunt, turns over her income of $100,000 to her uncle who is in financial difficulties, buys her first outfit of inexpensive clothes and tells Julian she is going to find a job. After moving to a dingy rooming house, she finds an ad for a governess. About to start on her new adventure, she finds her purse has been stolen, leaving her with only $1. Applying for the governess post, Noel is given a cool reception and no job. Later, dropping in at Julian's office, she is asked by the sympathetic manner of Ruth Chester, his pretty nurse.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 5

AFTER RUTH CHESTER shut the door of Julian's office in Noel's face, Noel walked across the street to the De Luxe, and had a solitary dinner of doughnuts and coffee. It was all she could afford, if, indeed, she had the money last until she found a job.

The next morning when she awakened, her stomach was clamoring wildly for food. She knew that regardless of what it might cost, she would have to have a substantial meal before she could even hope to accomplish a thing.

She dressed in the suit, a fresh linen blouse, put on the comfortable oxford, pulled the blue felt hat with its perky high crown down over her blond curls, and went to the same little cafe where she had breakfasted before. The girl lifted her brown eyes and looked at Noel coolly. "Plenty," she said and then lapsed into silence.

The girl looked at Noel again, as if sizing her up. She seemed to decide at last that Noel wanted to be friendly, so she said with a little

Noel knew already that she wasn't going to stay at the Peacock Dance Hall any longer than she could find something else. The building was nice enough, in good repair, consisting of three stories with the dance place on the main floor. But it was Nick Luigi himself Noel distrusted. The way he had looked at her out of his pale eyes gave her a feeling of resentment. She didn't intend staying there a moment longer than she had to.

At 6 o'clock Noel went to the De Luxe. She decided she wouldn't venture again to Julian's office, remembering Ruth Chester's rebuff, and the fact that there had been something malicious about the way she had closed Julian's office door in her face.

Walking down Madison, when Noel had about reached the cafe, she saw Ruth Chester coming out of the revolving doors of the Medical Arts building—and following her was Julian. He started to walk on with Ruth. Then he saw Noel and quickly crossed the street. "Look here, young lady," he exclaimed, taking Noel's arm. "I've got something serious to say to you."

Scioto Grangers Have Program on Patriotism

Float Approved For Annual Homecoming

An interesting and instructive patriotic program was presented to a representative audience of grangers, Wednesday evening, when Scioto grange met in regular session. The program was arranged by Miss Mabel Thompson, worthy lecturer.

J. M. Dountz, worthy master, was in the chair for the opening exercises and business meeting. During this time it was decided to enter a float in the parade at the annual homecoming at Commercial Point, August 5 and 6. The committee in charge was chosen including Miss Thompson, chairman, Mrs. Dan Van Vickle, Mrs. Fred Hudson, Mrs. Ralph Francis and Mrs. Paul Beers. The next group program meeting of the Scioto granges was announced. It will be held at Saltcreek Valley grange with the program furnished by Logan Elm grange on the evening of Tuesday, July 19.

The patriotic program was opened with group singing of "America". The question, "Why We Celebrate the Fourth?" was discussed by C. M. Beatty and S. E. Beers. DROUGHT ENDS, BUT 'HOPPERS BECOME PERIL

Five-State Region Faces Scourge In Next Crop Year

GOVERNOR PROVIDES AID Texas Uses Army Of 700 To Combat Insects

DALHART, Tex., July 7—(UP)—Inhabitants of a five-state area, once plagued by dust storms and drouth, already are making plans for continuing the fight next year on a new enemy—the grasshopper hordes that feast on their crops when rain comes.

The insects thrived in great numbers in southern Colorado last summer. A favorable winter and lack of organized extermination units permitted them to reach formidable proportions in the north-west Texas Panhandle, northeast Oklahoma, the Oklahoma Panhandle and southwest Kansas, as well as Colorado this year.

The situation in Texas became so acute that Gov. James V. Allred ordered troops and trucks from the 36th division to aid in the peace-time war. The army grew to approximately 700 men in Texas alone—soldiers, farmers, ranch hands and WPA workers.

Poison Widely Spread

Their ammunition was poisoned feed for the grasshoppers and their "arms" were makeshift mechanical blower-spreaders that spray the poison across hundreds of feet. The army spread 350,000 pounds of poison daily in Texas. The New Mexico allies spread three times as much poison, covering 45,000 acres a day.

The fight in Texas and New Mexico has cost an estimated $500,000 for poison alone this summer. Labor was donated, and equipment and funds for supporting the workers was provided by farmers and business men in the infested areas.

While damage in the two states probably is less than $5,000,000 this summer, experts estimate it would have been possibly five times greater had no effort been made to control the pests.

Threshed Wheat Affected

The spectacle of grasshoppers moving into the fertile plains in hordes, stripping foliage from the crops, being crushed to death on highways, and grazing on gardens spurred the greatest organized fight in recent Panhandle history. Wheat farmers suffered further loss on their harvested crops when the insects were picked up by threshers and contaminated new-threshed wheat. Buyers were forced to dock the prices paid for such wheat.

Next year, the battle should be easier. The ingenuity of Panhandle farmers and mechanists has developed newer, more efficient poison spreaders. Strategy to halt the "hoppers," advance has improved with one campaign for experience. The poison is spread in the path of the insects once, then repeated within a few weeks to make the work complete.

Col. Nat S. Perrine, commander of the national guardsmen in the campaign, believed that the next battle will be easier. The farmers know what they must do and how to mobilize.

The next campaign, he said, probably can be conducted without the necessity of calling out the National Guard.

Why is it not a good practice to preserve bananas in the refrigerator?

When bananas are purchased for the home, they usually have green tips, this means they are not ripe and the starch in the banana is not in easily digestible form. If the bananas are placed in the refrigerator, they do not ripen, the starch does not change to sugar, and the flavor is affected.

- 3 or 4 apples
- 1 C. brown sugar
- 1 Tbsp. flour
- 1/2 C. thick sour cream
- Cinnamon

Peel apples and cut into eighths. Arrange slices in unbaked pie shell. The pie must be well filled. Mix sugar and flour with the sour cream, and pour this over the apples. Sprinkle with cinnamon, and if you desire it extra rich, dot with butter. Bake in a hot oven, 425 degrees, for about 10 minutes, then reduce heat to 350 degrees and continue baking for about 30 minutes longer. Until apples are tender and the crust is a crisp brown. The brown sugar and sour cream will curdle but they form delicious little crumbs and flecks over the apples and the pie is very rich and satisfying.

Skill Needed to Handle Combines Successfully

COLUMBUS, July 7—One company sold 1,300 combine harvesters in Ohio in 1937, other kinds were bought by farmers, and many already were in use so it is certain that any inefficiency in operating these machines will affect the profits on many thousand acres of crops, according to E. A. Silver, department of agricultural engineering, Ohio State university.

Mr. Silver believes that farmers have become quite good mechanics through familiarity with farm tools, tractors, and automobiles but he says the combine is one machine that may seem to be running perfectly mechanically and at the same time may be so far out of adjustment that its performance is not up to standard. The job of the machine is to cut and thresh the crop with the least possible loss of whatever seed or grain is being harvested.

The machine will do only as good a job as its operator is capable of obtaining. Mr. Silver says the first thing for the operator to remember is to delay harvesting until the grain is dead ripe. The combine works more efficiently in ripe grain, and there is much less danger of future trouble with the grain than when harvesting is begun too early.

Members of the University agricultural engineering staff have made many tests to find how efficiently combines were being operated in the field. They have found that most losses of grain occur at the cylinder, the rack, the shoe, and the cutter bar. Losses in cutting weedy grain may be several times as high as in clean fields.

Mr. Silver believes most farmers accord too much importance to losses of grain at the cylinder. If some heads are found which have gone through the machine without being completely threshed, most observers believe the cylinder adjustment should be changed so every bit of straw is chopped finely.

causes greater proportionate losses at the rack and the shoe in weedy grain than the same adjustment in clean grain.

Mr. Silver advises farmers who have oats ready to harvest before all their wheat has been cut to leave the wheat and secure the oats first. Over-ripe oats shatter and lodge much more readily than fully ripe wheat. If the straw is not needed, the combine cutter bar should be set as high as is possible and still secure all the heads. Combines can be operated efficiently at higher speeds when as much stubble as possible is left.

Five-State Region Faces Scourge In Next Crop Year

GOVERNOR PROVIDES AID Texas Uses Army Of 700 To Combat Insects

DALHART, Tex., July 7—(UP)—Inhabitants of a five-state area, once plagued by dust storms and drouth, already are making plans for continuing the fight next year on a new enemy—the grasshopper hordes that feast on their crops when rain comes.

The insects thrived in great numbers in southern Colorado last Summer. A favorable Winter and lack of organized extermination units permitted them to reach formidable proportions in the northwest Texas Panhandle, northeast Oklahoma, the Oklahoma Panhandle and southwest Kansas, as well as Colorado this year.

The situation in Texas became so acute that Gov. James V. Allred ordered troops and trucks from the 36th division to aid in the peacetime war. The army grew to approximately 700 men in Texas alone—soldiers, farmers, ranch hands and WPA workers.

Poison Widely Spread

Their ammunition was poisoned feed for the grasshoppers and their "arms" were makeshift mechanical blower-spreaders that spray the poison across hundreds of feet. The army spread 350,000 pounds of poison daily in Texas. The New Mexico allies spread three times as much poison, covering 45,000 acres a day.

The fight in Texas and New Mexico has cost an estimated $500,000 for poison alone this Summer. Labor was donated, and equipment and funds for supporting the workers was provided by farmers and business men in the infested areas.

While damage in the two states probably is less than $5,000,000 this Summer, experts estimate it would have been possibly five times greater had no effort been made to control the pests.

Threshed Wheat Affected

The spectacle of grasshoppers moving into the fertile plains in hordes, stripping foliage from the crops, being crushed to death on highways as grazing on gardens spurred the greatest organized fight in recent Panhandle history. Wheat farmers suffered further loss on their harvested crops when the insects were picked up by threshers and contaminated new-threshed wheat. Buyers were forced to dock the prices paid for such wheat.

Next year, the battle should be easier. The ingenuity of Panhandle farmers and machinists has developed newer, more efficient poison spreaders. Strategy to halt the "hoppers," advance has improved with one campaign for experience. The poison is spread in the path of the insects once, then repeated within a few weeks to make the work complete.

Col. Nat S. Perrine, commander of the national guardsmen in the campaign, believed that the next battle will be easier. The farmers know what they must do and how to mobilize.

The next campaign, he said, probably can be conducted without the necessity of calling out the National Guard.

Why is it not a good practice to preserve bananas in the refrigerator?

When bananas are purchased for the home, they usually have green tips, this means they are not ripe and the starch in the banana is not in easily digestible form. If the bananas are placed in the refrigerator, they do not ripen, the starch does not change to sugar, and the flavor is affected.

This adjustment will insure more complete threshing of the heads but it greatly complicates the work of separating the grain from the mass of chopped material. One machine which was checked by the University men was losing only .3 of 1 percent of the grain at the cylinder but was permitting 398 pounds of grain per acre to pass out of the combine without being separated from the finely ground straw.

When the cylinder on this machine was adjusted for maximum clearance, the loss at the rack and shoe was less than one-sixth the previous amount and the loss at the cylinder increased only slightly. Too close cylinder adjustment

MIGHTY NATIONAL LEAGUE PITCHING PROVES TOO MUCH FOR AMERICANS

LOSERS ERRATIC TRYING TO WIN ANOTHER GAME

Fielders Do Yoeman Work Behind Vander Meer, Lee And Brown

CINCINNATI, July 7—(UP)—The ruling factor in baseball is no longer the mighty mace. It cannot be said now that power prevails over all. There is more to Abner Doubleday's game than brute slugging. With a stout defense and smart pitching the National league emerged from the shadows of defeat and subjugation and, at least until World Series time, does not have to take the taunts of the American league concerning its superiority. With yesterday's 4-1 triumph in the sixth all-star game, the National league proved the soundness of defense and pitching—proved it over all the American league could muster. The crumbling defense of the greatest stars of the American league resulted in the second National league triumph in six all-star games. Superlative pitching by three National leaguers appearing in their first all-star game: Johnny Vander Meer, Bill Lee and Mace Brown, nailed down the senior circuit's triumph over the American league's most brutal sluggers.

No Substitute Available The result emphasized once again in the white heat of competition that there is no substitute for superior pitching. Vander Meer, the Reds' kid southpaw who emerged from the game as one of the major league's brightest heroes, whittled down the American league giants to pigmy size. Bill Lee, Cubs' right-hander, fast-balled the siege guns of the junior circuit to death, and Mace Brown, Pittsburgh's curve ball expert, made the famed sluggers of the other league fold up in the clutches.

The National league's triumph was aided by American league blunders. Four errors, three of them vital, dumped three runs into the laps of the hustling National leaguers.

The National league won the game in typical National league style. They won it with pitching, with defense, with smartness and with hustle. In the junior league they forget finesse and style and knock your brains out. But smart pitching is still the antidote for slugging.

The American league had its all-star. If Shortstop Joe Cronin hadn't let Billy Herman's roller go between his legs in the first inning; if Jimmy Foxx hadn't thrown wild past first in the seventh; if Joe DiMaggio hadn't heaved the ball over Catcher Bill Dickey's head—if those things hadn't happened it might have been a 1-1 tie because each side made one earned run.

But when you mention the superb hurling of Vander Meer, Bill Lee and Mace Brown, the American leaguers have no answer.

The game was played before 27,067 highly-partisan home town fans.

Vander Meer coolly and methodically pitched the American leaguers into a whisper in the first three innings. He used only 31 pitches, didn't walk a man, allowed only one single and fanned the American league's foremost slugger, Jimmy Foxx, swinging from the boot-straps.

Bill Terry, National league manager, was criticized in some quarters for being so bold as to start Vander Meer, the first rookie ever to draw the all-star starting assignment. But Vander Meer made a wise man out of Terry.

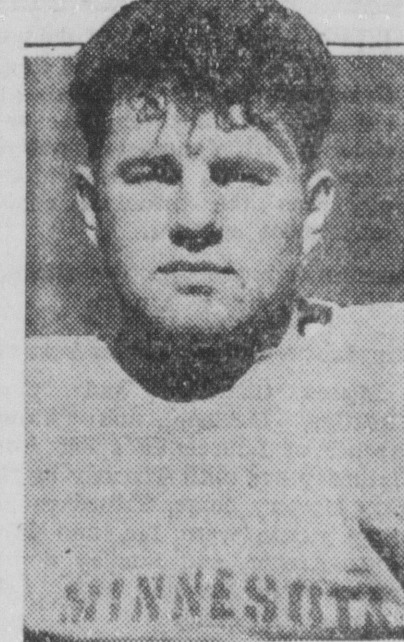

11 in Three Frames Lee followed Vander Meer, and faced only 11 men in three innings. He walked the first man to face him in the fourth, and allowed one hit, a fluke double behind third base by Bill Dickey which Shortstop Leo Durocher lost in the sun. Brown had tough going, allowing five hits. The bases were loaded with two out in the seventh, but he came out of the jam by fanning Pinch-Hitter Rudy York. He was in trouble again in the ninth but Left Fielder Joe Medwick raced

Max Schmeling Retains Hope For Another Fight

ABOARD STEAMSHIP BREMEN EN ROUTE TO GERMANY, July 7.—(UP)—Max Schmeling, 33-year-old former heavyweight champion of the world, still dreamed of regaining the title today as he neared the friendly shores of home.

Schmeling, blasted from the foremost challenger's role in less than one round by the brown fists of Joe Louis June 22, will make a comeback if the broken transverse process in his spinal column knits strongly and his physical condition is approved by German doctors.

up the incline in front of the score board to pluck Dickey's liner out of the air with one hand. After making the circus catch Medwick took a bad tumble, and held the ball. At least, Umpire Bill Klem ruled that he did, despite the fact that some American leaguers broadly hinted that Medwick dropped the ball, fell on it and picked it up underneath his body. Then Ival Goodman made a nice running catch of Lou Gehrig's liner to help Brown again. To end it, Brown burned a third strike over on Pinch-Hitter Bob Johnson, who still wants to talk about it.

The National league got its runs the easy way. Stanley Hack, Cubs' third baseman, singled to left off Lefty Gomez to start the game, raced to third on a hit and run play, when Cronin let Herman's grounder go through him, and scored on Medwick's fly.

Mel Ott's triple off the right-center wall, a 387-foot drive, and Ernie Lombardi's single accounted for the next run in the fourth off fiery Johnny Allen, Cleveland's ace.

Then Frank McCormick, Reds' rookie first baseman, only National league freshman to play throughout an all-star game, blasted a single to center off Lefty Grove in the seventh. Durocher bunted down the third base line, and the American league played it into a home run. Foxx threw the ball past Charlie Gehringer, second baseman who was late in covering first. It hardly looked like Gehringer's fault as many figured he should have covered the bag. Anyway, the ball bounded off the right field boxes. Before DiMaggio could retrieve it McCormick had scored and Durocher was pulling up at third. Then DiMaggio wound up and threw the ball over Catcher Dickey's head and Durocher scored.

The American league's only run came in the ninth on DiMaggio's single, and Cronin's double over Medwick's head. Medwick's great catch on Dickey preceded Cronin's double, and you can imagine what might have happened to the National league if he hadn't flagged it down.

VITT CUTS OFF INDIAN HOLIDAY FOR LONG DRILL

CLEVELAND, July 7.—(UP)—In a desperate attempt to shake the Cleveland Indians out of the slump that has cost them their undisputed hold on the American League lead, Manager Oscar Vitt today ordered his charges to cut short the holiday occasioned by the All-Star contest and report for a lengthy batting drill.

In a tie with New York for first place in the race, the Indians face the necessity of gaining ground during a series with the lowly St. Louis Browns, which opens Friday, or starting a long trek east next week in a dangerous spot.

The Tribe sluggers have been handcuffed in their recent games. In the last three contests they played the Indians made only 15 hits.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

CAUSING A BAD LEAD
WITH BOTH opponents bidding different suits against you, there is usually a pretty good chance that they may wind up in no trump. Sticking in a bid of your own suit may be bad stuff, if it is weakly topped. The chances then are that the foe can stop it safely and bid no trump anyway. Your partner then may be the one misled. His offering of that suit on the opening trick may present the foe with some tricks otherwise unobtainable. So, unless you are willing to have that suit led against no trump, bidding it may prove costly.

This deal arose in a duplicate. Some played it at 4-Spades by

North and others at 3-No Trump by South.

Three heart tricks were lost against 4-Spades and four heart tricks against 3-No Trumps. One pair earned a nice top due to East's misguided overcall of 2-Clubs after South had started with 1-Diamond and North had responded with 1-Spade. As a result of East's bid, instead of opening hearts, West led the club 6. South cashed five spade tricks, four diamonds and three clubs.

Cotton Boll Has 7 Locks
MESILLA PARK, N. M. (UP)
—Charles P. Field raised what he considers an unusual boll of cotton on his farm here. The boll has seven locks instead of the usual four or five. Most valley cotton is five-lock, according to County Farm Agent R. Foster.

Most sealing wax does not contain any wax, being composed of shellac, Venetian turpentine and coloring matter.

Obituary

To announce the many physical details of the life of Ira B. Weiler would indeed be a simple matter, but, on the other hand, to evaluate the life, feelings, joys, disappointments and hopes of the man is a greater and more difficult problem. Ira B. Weiler departed this life in the fifth month of the fifty-ninth year of his life leaving in his immediate family his widow and five children. Of German parentage, he was born in Wayne township, Pickaway county, January 24, 1880. Early in life he was orphaned and left to the care of persons other than his parents, to which fact he seldom referred. Except to one or two of his closest friends the unhappy incidents remained locked in his own memory.

One morning in his early life when all the world seemed wrong, when, as he thought, friends and love had deserted and forgotten him, he went alone to the woods and there talked it all over with himself and with Nature. In that boyish interview he fell in love with Nature and Nature's Cause, a love to which he was always true. In the closing days of his life he spoke of the melody that rose above the noise and bustle of industry, and turned to his listening ear to that song of beauty he always listened for.

Mr. Weiler was an ardent searcher for the realities of life. He found some of them in years of class-room teaching, some in the activities of business, some in the privacy of the home he loved, some in the association of friends, many of them, he found, in the contemplation of the beautiful and the true, but always he found his truest realities in his contacts with Nature and Nature's Cause. The varied and producing earth, the songs of birds, the glories of the starry night, the grandeur of the brilliant moon never lost interest to him, but were to him all bountiful sources of happiness in his constant search for the realities. A few days ago he spoke feelingly of the incompleteness of this life, its unfulfilled yearnings, its disappointments, its unsatisfied hopes, its eagerness for completeness, saying that all of these call for another and a greater reality to be found only in a continuity of existence.

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank our neighbors, friends and relatives who assisted in any way during the illness and after the death of our late husband and father L. B. Weiler and to assure them all has been deeply appreciated.

Mrs. L. B. Weiler and family.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

CAUSING A BAD LEAD

WITH BOTH opponents bidding different suits against you, there is usually a pretty good chance that they may wind up in no trump. Sticking in a bid of your own suit may be bad stuff, if it is weakly topped. The chances then are that the foe can stop it safely and bid no trump anyway. Your partner then may be the one misled. His offering of that suit on the opening trick may present the foe with some tricks otherwise unobtainable. So, unless you are willing to have that suit led against no trump, bidding it may prove costly.

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)
This deal arose in a duplicate. Some played it at 4-Spades by

North and others at 3-No Trumps by South.

Three heart tricks were lost against 4-Spades and four heart tricks against 3-No Trumps. One pair earned a nice top due to East's misguided overall of 2-Clubs after South had started with 1-Diamond and North had responded with 1-Spade. As a result of East's bid, instead of opening hearts, West led the club 6. South cashed five spade tricks, four diamonds and three clubs.

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)
What is South's best play for 4-Hearts after the lead of the club Q.

Obituary

To announce the many physical details of the life of Ira B. Weller would indeed be a simple matter, but, on the other hand, to evaluate the life, feelings, joys, disappointments and hopes of the man is a greater and more difficult problem. Ira B. Weller departed this life in the fifth month of the fifty-ninth year of his life leaving in his immediate family his widow and five children. Of German parentage, he was born in Wayne township, Pickaway county, January 24, 1889. Early in life he was orphaned and left to the care of persons other than his parents, to which fact he seldom referred. Except to one or two of his closest friends the unhappy incidents remained locked in his own memory. One morning in his early life when all the world seemed wrong, when, as he thought, friends and love had deserted and forgotten him, he went alone to the woods and there talked it all over with himself and with Nature. In that boyish interview he fell in love with Nature and Nature's Cause, a love to which he was always true. In the closing days of his life he spoke of the melody that rose above the noise and bustle of industry, and turned a listening ear to that song of beauty he always listened for.

Mr. Weller was an ardent searcher for the realities of life. He found some of them in years of classroom teaching, some in the activities of business, some in the privacy of the home he loved, some in the association of friends, many of them, he found, in the contemplation of the beautiful and the true, but always he found his firmest realities in his contacts with Nature and Nature's Cause. The varied and producing earth, the songs of birds, the glories of the starry night, the grandeur of the brilliant moon never lost interest to him, but were to him all bountiful sources of happiness in his constant search for the realities.

A few days ago he spoke feelingly of the incompleteness of this life, its unfulfilled yearnings, its disappointments, its unsatisfied hopes, its eagerness for completeness, saying that all of these call for another and a greater reality to be found only in a continuity of existence.

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank our neighbors, friends and relatives who assisted in any way during the illness and after the death of our late husband and father I. B. Weller and to assure them all has been deeply appreciated.
Mrs. I. B. Weller and family.

CITY TO REQUIRE TAX ADVANCE FOR OPERATION DURING SUMMER MONTHS

GORDON WARNS COUNCIL FUNDS BECOMING LOW

Only $611.41 Remaining in General Account; Economy Urged

After July 10 Circleville will have only $611.41 in its general fund.

Councilmen were given this information Wednesday evening by Ben Gordon, chairman of the finance committee.

Mr. Gordon said a report from Miss Lillian Young, city auditor, showed $3,221.59 in the general fund as of July 6. Water bills due July 10 amount to $1,968.75 and light bill $641.43, or a total of $2,610.18.

"Where we're going to get any more money and where we will cut down expenses is still to be worked out," Mr. Gordon said.

Robert G. Colville, county treasurer, said that the city could probably obtain an advance on the June tax collection in about a week or 10 days. The June collection, covering the last half of 1932, opened July 1. The distribution will be made in the fall.

On numerous occasions in recent years it has been necessary for the city to obtain advances on the tax collections.

Balances in other funds were: library $9,229.64, auto street repair $4,125, disposal plant $50,805.06, gasoline tax $566.90 and hospital $1,459.71.

Councilmen held no discussion of the financial situation.

Theatres

AT THE CLIFTONA

The new Richard Dix vehicle, "Blind Alibi," which is showing at the Cliftona theatre Friday and Saturday offers a gripping story of a man's efforts to save his sister's reputation in an unusual type of modern romantic adventure. The plot deals with his amateur sleuthing to recover a packet of letters that are being used to blackmail his sister.

Dix, foregoing his career as a sculptor, robs the blackmailers' safe, narrowly escapes capture, and then learns that the packet has been hidden in an antique chair being shipped to a big museum. He dares not take the museum authorities into his confidence. Instead, he pretends to be blind, adopts a trained dog guide, and is allowed to roam through the museum studying the statues by the sense of touch.

Another group of blackmailers gets on the trail of the letters. Then operations and a stormy romance with a girl curator of the museum provide mounting situations in the story.

The methods by which super-intelligent shepherd dogs and their blind masters are taught to work together, are also interestingly disclosed in the picture.

Whitney Bourne, who has scored in several recent RKO Radio vehicles, is the heroine in "Blind Alibi," and Eduardo Ciannelli is the chief menace. Frances Mercer, Paul Guilfoyle, Jack Arnold, Richard Lane, Frank M. Thomas, Solly Ward, Tommy Bupp and Walter Miller have important roles. "Ace, the Wonder Dog," takes the canine role. Lew Landers directed the production by Cliff Reid.

The reason why the government isn't run as well and economically as a well organized business is because a lot of the government jobs are given to people who did the politician a favor. While in business, the man has'ta be a good worker to hold his job and the boss is a little more cold blooded about it.

One day the boss of a lumber camp fell in the river among the logs and woulda drowned if a workman hadn't jumped in and pulled him out. When the boss came to, he looked at the workman and says, "You're fired!"

The workman says "Gee, boss—if I hadn't seen you fall in, you'd drown!" The boss says "Yes—and if you'd been attendin' to your work, you wouldn't have seen me fall in!"

Prussian Prince Named Other Man in Babs' Case

LONDON, July 7.—(UP)—A social triumph which back-fired caused the final marital rift between Countess Barbara Hutton Haugwitz-Reventlow and her husband, circles closely connected with the couple said today.

Prince Frederick of Prussia, grandson of the former German Kaiser, was mentioned as the unwitting center of the dispute, and as the man whom, according to testimony at Bow street police court Tuesday, Count Court Haugwitz-Reventlow threatened to "shoot like a dog."

The Prince came to London mainly to study British financial and business methods. A bachelor, 26, handsome, he mingled in the best London society and according to gossip was eyed by many blue-blooded mothers as an ideal husband for their debutante daughters.

He is a social prize, and according to informants, Count Haugwitz-Reventlow, in the social sense, bagged him to be a guest at Winfield house, the Countess's home here where she embarked on a London social career.

The story went that the Countess liked the Prince and that the Count became angry.

Prince Frederick, according to informants, seemed unaware that he was the center of anyversal's "The Black Doll" which opens at the Grand Theatre Friday. In addition to the tense drama and the bright thread of romance, "The Black Doll" also brought the audience a sequence of highly amusing situations revolving around a fat-headed sheriff and his deputies that most unexpectedly relieved the nerve strain and caused the audience to rock with mirth.

The story from a Crime Club novel tells how Nelson Rood (C. Henry Gordon), a cruel and shrewd financier, finds "The Black Doll" on his desk in his home. It is a sign to him that vengeance is due as result of his having slain one of his partners after the discovery of "The Black Doll" mine, many years ago.

Standouts in the cast are Donald Woods, as the hero; Edgar Kennedy and Syd Saylor as Sheriff Renick and his deputy; Nan Grey as the lovely Marian Rood; William Lundigan as Rex, and C. Henry Gordon as Nelson Rood. Direction by Otis Garrett is swell.
